Consider yourself an experienced journalist, editor, researcher, and newspaper feature writer. Based on the above copied content. Transform the original article into an independently reported editorial newspaper-style feature. Write the response without using any words, phrases, sentence patterns, tone structures, or writting patterns listed in the uploaded file. Do not show or provide the links of the sources in between the article. NO SOURCE LINKS, PLEASE.. Preserve all facts, figures, dates, names, statistics, statements, and key information from the original article. Preserve direct quotations exactly as provided unless correcting obvious spelling or grammatical errors. Research the subject using reputable and current sources, including official websites, government publications, recognised industry reports, academic journals, respected newspapers, magazines, and verified organisational announcements. Identify each major announcement, achievement, event, organisation, person, statistic, policy, investment, partnership, product launch, sports achievement, film release, government initiative, or industry development mentioned in the article. Add relevant background information, historical context, supporting facts, industry trends, comparisons, previous milestones, and related developments where appropriate. Explain why the development matters, its significance, and its potential impact on readers, the industry, the community, or the wider sector. Rewrite the article in a neutral, balanced, evidence-based editorial journalistic style. Replace promotional, marketing, public relations, corporate, or self-promotional language with factual reporting while preserving the original information. Prioritise information that is useful and relevant to readers rather than information that merely promotes the organisation, event, product, or individual featured in the article. Use professional news-writing principles, placing the most newsworthy information early in the article and supporting details later. Write in clear British English that can be easily understood by readers aged 10 to 12 years while maintaining professional journalistic standards. Expand the article to approximately 700 to 800 words by naturally incorporating researched context and background information. Do not create separate research sections. Integrate all additional information naturally into the article. Do not include URLs, citations, footnotes, references, or hyperlinks within the article text. Avoid speculation, assumptions, opinions, rumours, repetitive wording, filler content, and AI-style phrasing. Ensure the article clearly identifies all key organisations, brands, institutions, locations, people, events, and initiatives mentioned in the story so they can be accurately extracted for SEO, entity identification, and social media tagging. The final article should read like a professionally researched newspaper feature written by an experienced human journalist rather than a rewritten press release.

TIME100 India Gala Set in Mumbai on December 12, 2026

TIME announces First-Ever TIME100 Next India List, Featuring 100 Emerging Leaders

TIME has announced its first-ever TIME100 Next India list, recognising 100 emerging leaders from India whose work is shaping the country's future across business, entertainment, science, sports, media and social causes. The announcement was made on 19 November 2026, with the first international edition of TIME100 Next set to be celebrated at a special event in Mumbai in December.

The new India edition marks the first time TIME has taken its TIME100 Next series beyond its existing global format to focus on emerging talent from an individual country. The list has been selected by TIME journalists in India and other parts of the world. It includes established names from the film and sports industries, alongside business founders, scientists, artists, journalists and people working on social issues.

Reliance is the presenting partner of the inaugural edition. TIME will host the TIME100 Next India Gala on 12 December at the Jio World Convention Centre in Mumbai. The event will bring together several people named on the list, with actor Alia Bhatt, entrepreneur Pawan Kumar Chandana, filmmakers Payal Kapadia, Aryan Khan and Theja Rio among those expected to attend. Singer Faheem Abdullah is scheduled to give a special musical performance.

Three covers reflect the range of talent

The December 7 issue of TIME will carry three international covers. The first features Alia Bhatt, while the second features Pawan Kumar Chandana, co-founder, chief executive officer and chief technology officer of Hyderabad-based space company Skyroot Aerospace. The third cover brings together filmmakers Aryan Khan, Payal Kapadia and Theja Rio.

Chandana's inclusion comes at a time when India's private space industry is gaining ground. Skyroot made history in November 2022 when it launched Vikram-S, India's first privately developed rocket. The company reached another milestone in July 2026, when its Vikram-I rocket completed India's first successful orbital launch by a private Indian company from Indian soil. The mission placed satellites into low Earth orbit. Chandana's recognition reflects the growing role of private companies in India's space programme.

The film industry has a strong presence in the selection. Payal Kapadia received international attention in 2024 when her film All We Imagine as Light won the Grand Prix at the 77th Cannes Film Festival. It was the first Indian film in the main competition at Cannes in 30 years. Aryan Khan made his directorial debut with the Netflix series The Ba*ds of Bollywood, while Theja Rio has also gained attention for his work as a filmmaker.

TIME has also arranged for well-known personalities to write about selected members of the list. Contributors include filmmakers, actors, musicians, and other public figures who have worked in the same fields as the people they profile.

Among the pairings, S.S. Rajamouli writes about Alia Bhatt, Imtiaz Ali writes about Vedang Raina, Richa Chadha writes about Parvathy Thiruvothu, and Vishal Bhardwaj writes about Aryan Khan. Music composer A.R. Rahman writes about Faheem Abdullah, while actor Allu Arjun writes about Anirudh Ravichander. Ayushmann Khurrana writes about young cricketer Vaibhav Sooryavanshi, and Shruti Ganguly writes about Kani Kusruti.

Sooryavanshi's inclusion highlights the growing pool of young sporting talent in India. He made headlines in the Indian Premier League in 2025 after scoring 101 runs from 38 balls for Rajasthan Royals against Gujarat Titans. At 14, he became the youngest player to score a century in men's T20 cricket.

Sport, business and science feature prominently

The sports section includes Indian women's cricket captain Harmanpreet Kaur, boxer Lovlina Borgohain, former tennis player Sania Mirza, hockey goalkeeper Savita Punia, cricketer Vaibhav Sooryavanshi and athlete Vithya Ramraj.

The music category includes Anirudh Ravichander, Arivu, Diljit Dosanjh, Faheem Abdullah, Ishaan Ghosh, Jasleen Royal and Prateek Kuhad. The entertainment section features Ali Fazal, Anuparna Roy, Arushi Mudgal, Ipshita Chakraborty Singh, Ishaan Khatter, Nayanthara, Pa Ranjith, Sai Pallavi, Vedang Raina, Vicky Kaushal and Zahan Kapoor.

Business and technology leaders named include Ajaita Shah, Albinder Singh Dhindsa, Awais Ahmed, Claire Mazumdar, Keshav Suri, Leo Mavely, Pawan Kumar Chandana, Peyush Bansal, Pratyush Kumar, Radhika Gupta, Shrey Agarwal, Shreya Mishra, Sivan Santhosh, Tanya Singhal and Tarun Mehta.

The health and science group includes Anish Malpani, Anjana Badrinarayanan, Aqsa Shaikh, Aradhana Rai Gupta, Ashim Sattar, Neena Gupta, Neha Kale, Revant Himatsingka, Shubhanshu Shukla and Soumya Dabriwal.

The list also recognises people working in fashion, art, media, literature and food. They include Anant Goenka, Anant Nath, Bhavitha Mandava, Bhavya Ramesh, Chintan Pandya, Devi Seetharam, Diipa Büller-Khosla, Diya Joukani, Hussain Shahzad, Masaba Gupta, Mayur Vayeda, Meena Kandasamy, Meera Devi, Padma Yangchan, Prateek Sadhu, Rithika Merchant, Ritika Chopra, Skarma Sonam Tashi, Tushar Vayeda, Vikrant Bhise and Zeyad Masroor Khan.

Social workers and campaigners named include Aakash Sethi, Grace Banu, Kuldeep Dantewadia and Shaheen Malik.

The wide selection reflects the range of work being done in India, from scientific research and space technology to cinema, sport, fashion and social welfare. It also gives recognition to people whose work may be less familiar to international readers than that of major film stars and business leaders.
TIME outlines its reason for the India edition
TIME Chief Executive Officer Jessica Sibley said the new edition would recognise people whose work was shaping their industries and India's future.

"India is home to an extraordinary generation of leaders whose ideas and influence are helping shape their industries and the country's future, with impact that extends globally," said TIME Chief Executive Officer Jessica Sibley. "TIME100 Next India allows us to recognise the people defining what comes next, and we are grateful to Reliance for their partnership in helping us bring this new chapter of the TIME100 community to life."

TIME Editor-in-Chief Sam Jacobs also explained the thinking behind the India edition in his letter to readers. He wrote: "Since its launch, TIME100 Next has sought to identify the emerging leaders shaping our future…But even a global list of 100 people can only scratch the surface….Today, we're taking that step with the launch of TIME100 Next India, our first-ever regional TIME100 list. And we can't imagine a better place to start….India is home to one of the world's largest and youngest populations…This generation won't just shape India's future. Its ideas, ambitions, and leadership will help shape the world's…"

TIME first introduced its TIME100 Next list in 2021. The annual selection focuses on people who are beginning to influence their fields and may play an important role in the years ahead. The India edition takes this approach to a national level for the first time.

The December 7 issue will be available at newsstands worldwide and will contain the three covers and exclusive profiles. TIME will publish further material, including photographs and videos, on its digital platform.

The TIME100 Next India Gala will take place on December 12 at Mumbai's Jio World Convention Centre. Several people featured in the selection, including Alia Bhatt, Pawan Kumar Chandana, Payal Kapadia, Aryan Khan and Theja Rio, are expected to attend. Faheem Abdullah will perform at the event.

For India, the first edition brings together people working in fields that rarely receive attention through a single international recognition programme. Its longer-term value will depend on how the selected individuals continue their work and how much attention their achievements receive beyond the December celebrations.
